The aims of the project are:

- Improve e-Learning in a global sense allying technological developments and societal challenges.
- Create better e-Learning by reducing social barriers.
- Develop e-Learning tools and methodologies (technological and conceptual related, and evaluation related tools and methodologies) to address “hard-to-reach” groups and to promote among them better skills with regards to the labour market and inclusion and their European citizenship.
- Disseminate the e-Learning offer as widely as possible across participating countries, near the “hard-to-reach” audiences and near the public in general.
- Promoting the development, testing and implementation of innovative practices in the fields of education and training.
- Empowering people through education.
- Help e-learning providers to deal with the problems of e-learning environments and overcome them more easily.
- Making learning more accessible to excluded people, and hard-to-reach people.
- Improving the level of key competences and skills training to excluded people.

This project has been funded with support from the European Commission.
